
Whenever the mind is stirred from its slumber
The animating force that lies dormant within
Awakens from the shadowy depths of forgetfulness:
That which emerges from the expansive avenues of Imagination, a mere reflection of the true wonders
That lie beyond the grasp of mortal hands: to experience
The wonder of worlds beyond the imagination of Those who willfully sleep, unfolding in a moment
Of rare clarity, revealing wisdom beyond conventional
Understanding; the likes of which remain a mystery
To those who look no further than the physical world:
For the mind is not bound by the limitations of
The physical; as the mental construct is boundless
In nature, that which springs from its limitless expanse
A manifestation of the infinite field of consciousness.